Danols is an electric guitarist & composer from Madrid, Spain.

He gives solo electric guitar concerts, featuring his own compositions and arranges.

He has released two solo albums; "little pieces for electric guitar" in 2014 and "Sounds" in 2016.

Some of the venues where he has played include Girona's guitar festival, Valencia's Sofar Sounds, Castellón's royal casino, León's Eutherphe Hall and different halls/clubs in Madrid.

His passion started as a 10-year-old boy, when he discovered the guitar and, as a self-taught, started to play and compose, playing his first gigs at fourteen.

Some years later he received his first lessons at a music school and his curiosity for the technical and theoretical aspects of the guitar started to grow. That's why he searched for a teacher graduated from Berklee, later deciding to get a professional degree at the 21st Century Music School and receiving too an scholarship to study jazz at Escuela de Música Creativa.

Thirsty for knowledge, he managed to get a classical teacher graduated in composition and direction from the Royal Conservatory of Music.

Meanwhile, different musical projects were going on.

Always restless, as his musical studies progressed, he started composing works for electric guitar unaccompanied, and before he could even imagine it led him to work on his first album and to start giving solo concerts in 2014.

STAGE PLOT

As an amplified instrument, if the music hall is small, we can go without a sound technician.

However, if you have such a professional, the minimum would be:

- A microphone for the amplifier.
- Another one for the voice.
- Two microphone stands.
- Mixer and monitors/PA equipment.
